INTERVENTION LAST RESORT President Hopes to Have Military Element Name Government He Can Support

LAREDO, Texas, June 3.—Fugitive preparing for further hostilities, instead of a "get-together" plan as requested by President Wilson, Carranza today took across the border thousands of rifle ammunition. They will be distributed to arsenals in northern Mexico. Further shipments, ahead of a possible embargo, are expected soon.

NOGALES, Ariz., June 3.—Ten Mexican bandits are reported to have laid siege to the ranch house of L. E. Bowers, an American, near Nogales, Sonora, and his wife are reported standing them off with rifles.

The bandits are reported to be plundering and looting the ranch. Many other Americans are in peril.

No word has been received this afternoon, and it is feared here that the Bowers family were finally overwhelmed after a brave fight.

The railroad between Nogales and Guaymas has been cut, the bandits claiming three bridges.

In a pitched battle last night at Querob station between factions, six Mexicans were slain.

VILLAS KILL AMERICAN WASHINGTON, June 3.—The Tampico consul today notified the state department that May 27, J. N. Bennett, an American, was shot dead by Villistas, who fired on a boat loaded with Carranzistas with whom he was en route from Panuco to Tampico. Details were lacking.

Trouble May Come WASHINGTON, June 3.—The belief was growing today that the United States will not do business with any of the Mexican factions.

Carranza's attitude was interpreted as meaning that he claimed to be the Mexican government. General Villa seemed disposed to accept President Wilson's terms only on the basis of American recognition of a government which will keep him in charge of the army. General Zapata apparently was suddenly defiant.

Villa representatives here were in a hurry as saying Villa would meet the president's wishes. That was accepted as a characteristic Villa trait in all relations with the United States. Villa has shown that he valued this country's friendship, but whether he would value it sufficiently to eliminate himself entirely has been considered doubtful. As for Carranza, officials were doubtful. The man who knew him best rather expected that he would send word that he was the real ruler of Mexico—the man who should be recognized. General Silliman, however, was looked to influence him to make concessions.

The president and his cabinet are expected tomorrow to decide what is a "reasonable time" to be given the factions to get together. It was considered certain that this would be probably not more than a fortnight.

Killings May Force Hand The president's hand may be forced before that time. Disquieting reports of the killing of Americans were reaching here today. They came through unofficial channels and lacked confirmation, but the fact that the killing of J. M. Bennett, in the Panuco oil fields, took place ten days ago and news of it only reached the state department yesterday, forced officials to fear that there might be truth in the report that at least six Americans have been slain in that region recently.

It has been recognized that some at least of the robber chieftains who have been masquerading in Mexico as patriots and enriching themselves on the country, might attempt re-

MOOS MARKS TRAIL TO GUIDE GUESTS

Sand Lake Coulee Farmer Who Will Entertain La Crosse Business Men Makes Trip to City

TROUT-FISHING FOR PICNICKERS Dance in the Evening Will Be Held at Old Richards Farm Between Moos' Home and Onalaska

Additional details of the frolic at which Otto Moos, Sand Lake Coulee farmer, will be host to La Crosse businessmen and their wives tomorrow, were made known today when Mr. Moos came to the city on a trail-marking trip. He lacked up signs indicating all the turnings to follow the road to his farm on the other side of Onalaska.

The barn dance which is to be the big feature of the event will be held at the old Richards farm, now owned by Will Hauser, which lies a few miles this side of Moos' home. The beautiful hill-surrounded Moos farm in Sand Lake Coulee will be the scene of the afternoon picnic which will provide the dance. The city visitors are expected to bring lunch baskets, and coffee and cream will be provided by Mr. and Mrs. Moos. An "added attraction" for anglers is the announcement that there are trout in the creek just this side of the Sand Lake Coulee farmstead.

Direction for following the road into Sand Lake Coulee were compiled today as follows: Drive to Onalaska, turning east through main business street and continue past cemetery. At cemetery turn north following telephone poles up Sand Coulee, passing old Richards farm, where dance is to be held. Richards place is large brick house on right hand side, on macadam road. After passing Richards farm continue north on macadam road until it goes down slight hill. Then turn to right, and make next turn to left. Keep to the left following telephone poles, cross creek and keep to left until road runs into Moos farm. Signs and arrows will mark route.

If road to Onalaska is covered with road tar detour can be taken by North Salem road to Campbell town hall, thence straight north to Onalaska cemetery, and from there following directions as above. Roads on this detour are a little sandy. Other road good all the way.

MOTHER GOES TO PRISON

MILWAUKEE, June 3.—Mrs. Susie Miodak, convicted of strangling to death her six year old son Adam on the night of May 2, left today for Waupun in company with a matron and deputy sheriff to begin her life sentence. Just before they departed, Mrs. Miodak gave 25 cents to the jail officials to buy a toy for her son Johnny, three years old, who will be committed to an institution.

TOWNE NAMED WARDEN

MADISON, Wis., June 3.—Charles F. Towne, former warden of Waupun state penitentiary, was today appointed to that position to succeed Warden Daniel Woodard. He will take up his duties July 1.

ALDERMEN WRANGLE OVER NORTH "HIGH" RESOLUTION TABLED

William Torrance Sees a Veiled Threat in Remarks of Chairman Kempter and Leaves Meeting

Laid Over Until September Burt C. Smith Leads Opposition Declaring Present School Should Not Be Divided

Last night's joint committee meeting between council committees on schools and finance, which got together to discuss the Kempter resolution providing for raising $50,000 in two years with which to erect a north side high school, broke up in a sham battle between aldermen, in which skirmishing was fast and furious.

Alderman Kempter, who presided over the meeting, was reinforced by more than a dozen north side businessmen, while opposition to the Kempter resolution was led by Alderman Burt C. Smith, who declared he did not believe in placing a high school on the north side and thought it unwise to divide the present high school in any way.

Alderman Kempter and his associates began a cross examination of the two south side aldermen, which led to the arguments. He asked Alderman Smith how he was going to vote on the north side school and then put the same question to Alderman Torrance, who refused to vote on the matter. Then the chair attempted to put the question on his resolution to a vote, which brought a vigorous protest from Alderman Torrance.

Torrance Sees a Threat "Do you think there is anything in La Crosse more necessary than this school?" asked Alderman Kempter of Mr. Torrance.

"Yes, I do," responded Mr. Torrance. "We need a sewer to care for the wants of the other school." "Do you think you are going to get a sewer that way?" queried the chair, and immediately the battle was on.

Alderman Torrance took the position that the chairman's remark implied a threat and said he would not be threatened or bulldozed. He said the chairman was trying to force him on record on the school, although the tax budget would not be made up until next November and there was no knowing at this time what exigencies arise before then.

These "frank" remarks got into the argument with the remark that such was "always the way with the south side, when the north side asked for anything, the south side aldermen turned them down."

North Side Well Cared For Alderman Torrance resented this and declared the north side has as many miles of paving, sewers, sidewalks, water mains and as good fire protection per capita as has any section of the city. He pulled on his hat and stamped out of the meeting, closing the door behind him.

Then came Alderman Smith's turn. He defied Chairman Kempter to show where south side aldermen had not always voted honestly with the north side men, according to their convictions. "We all vote on the square and to the best of our considerations," he thundered.

In the meanwhile Alderman Worth introduced a resolution that the Kempter resolution be tabled until next September which was carried and the stormy session was ended.

Benebet Has Figures Superintendent L. P. Benebet, who appeared before the aldermen in behalf of the school, presented a table of figures just compiled showing that in ten years the total number of graduates from the high school including the present class, is 771. Of this number 121, or 16 per cent, are from North La Crosse, while 32 per cent of the total school population is from that side of town.

During this period the Fifth district graduated 53 pupils from the high school, the Seventh district graduated 62, and 11 pupils from St. James school were graduated from the high school.

The largest percentage of pupils was graduated from the Third district which is nearest the high school, where 224 pupils received diplomas. In the First district 103 pupils received diplomas, although this is one of the smallest districts in La Crosse, and the per capita wealth of the population is small.

In the Sixth district at the extreme south end, which is the largest, 82 graduated. The second is credited with 78 graduates, St. Wenceslaus school with 13, Holy Trinity with 6, St. Mary's with 11 and St. Joseph's with 9. Twelve graduates came from tuition schools; 85 came from out of town and moved into the south side during their high school term and five moved into the north side.

All of the graduates from parochial schools.

MISS DOERFLINGER WEDS CHICAGO MAN HERE LAST NIGHT

Nuptials of Samuel Frances Fellows and La Crosse Society Girl Solemnized at Doerflinger Residence

AN ELABORATE SOCIAL EVENT Charm of Beautiful Surroundings Lends Pleasure to Guests at the Happy Event

THEY LEAVE FOR TRIP IN EAST Mr. and Mrs. Fellows Will Be at Home in La Crosse After the First of September

A scene of beauty and elegance was that which furnished the setting for the nuptials of Miss Viola Doerflinger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Doerflinger, and Samuel Frances Fellows of Chicago, at the Doerflinger residence, 142 South Fourteenth street, last evening.

Promptly at 8 o'clock the bridal party entered the drawing room, moving to the Wedding March played by Kreutz's orchestra, the principals halting before Monsignor Krammer, who performed the wedding ceremony.

Little Gretchen Langenbach and Master Bobbie Bayer strewed the way with rose petals from gilt baskets. Came the bride and the bridegroom; after them Mrs. S. Y. Hyde, matron of honor, and the Misses Kathleen Doyle and Ethel Brink, bridesmaids, and Jess B. Hawley, best man. Charles Fassett and Alex Moll were the ushers.

A Charming Bride Charming in the grace of womanly dignity the bride was radiantly beautiful in a handsome bridal gown of white satin with court train trimmed with duchess lace. It was modeled on Empire lines with skill that loaned its art to the charm of the gracious bride. The veil, cap-shaped at the top, was entwined with orange blossoms. A single jewel, a diamond lavender, gift of the bridegroom, was her only ornament.

The matron of honor and bridesmaids were attractively gowned in lace a delicate pink shading from yellow to cream at the bottom of the skirts; they wore fancy hats and carried gilt baskets of roses, the bridesmaids with bows of pink and yellow chiffon.

Mrs. Doerflinger, the bride's mother, and Mrs. Mary Fellows, Chicago, mother of the groom, were in the receiving line.

A charm of simplicity characterized the wedding service, impressive in its solemnity and the bride and bridegroom presented a picture of distinction as the sacred vows were exchanged.

Mrs. Doerflinger's gown was silver embroidered net, its tunic edged with fur; Mrs. Fellows was gowned in flitter net over white satin, and both were most attractive.

An Attractive Setting Throughout, the arrangement and decorations of the Doerflinger home showed discriminating taste. There was an atmosphere of refinement in the beauty of the place, a soft harmony that soothed as it delighted the senses. The color scheme may be said to have been pink and yellow, these colors predominating in appropriate shades. Tall palms gave their stately beauty to the rooms, about them the graceful sweep of ferns, the rich rose colors and the sweetness of slender lilies. Distributed through banks of foliage tall, white holders raised cathedral candles, and masses of pure white lilies adorned piano and tables. A mound of bride's roses and foliage centered the dining room table, and masses of American beauty roses made fragrant the ice cream room in which pink predominated.

Refreshments Served In the dining room coffee and salad were served by Mesdames F. E. Davis, Frank Funke, J. G. Egan and Horace Holley. Ices and cakes were

GERMAN REPLY IS IRRELEVANT TO BE AMERICAN POSITION

President to Have Legal Opinion to This Effect Before Him in Few Hours

AFFIDAVITS SAY SHIP HAD GUNS Legal Experts Claim They Are Offset by Port Officials' Statement She Had No Weapons

BERLIN, via The Hague, June 3.—In the latest note handed to Ambassador Gerard, the German foreign office admits that in all probability the American steamer Cushing was attacked by German aviators, it was learned today.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—President Wilson will have before him within a few hours a legal opinion disposing of Germany's latest contentions in the Lusitania case. It will then be up to him to decide how much of it to make a part of the new German note, expected to be approved by the cabinet Friday and then dispatched to Berlin.

The opinion will state positively that the question raised by Germany concerning the alleged presence of arms and Canadian reservists on the ship is irrelevant. It will strip the German reply of its most vital contentions and will narrow the issues involved to the original American position.

Affidavits filed with the state department purporting to show that guns were mounted on the Lusitania and that there were hidden explosives, chiefly gun cotton, on board, will be considered.

Take Collector's Word On the gun proposition, the state department's legal experts take the view that the German claim is disposed of by the New York port collector's report, declaring his inspectors examined every part of the vessel carefully, even entering the hold, without finding the weapons referred to. It will be pointed out also that no part of the decks was strengthened to receive them.

The carrying of small arms and ammunition, it will be stated, was in accordance with law, and the exact statute will be cited to prove this.

The charge that the manifest was falsified to conceal the alleged fact that hidden explosives were carried, the opinion will say, amounts, even if true, only to a case of fraud or conspiracy against the government of the United States, making the vessel as carrying contraband, possibly subject to seizure but not to destruction.

Examine All Claims Counsellor Robert Lansing of the state department, who is preparing the legal opinion, stated today that every suggestion raised on behalf of the German position was being carefully examined, whether relevant to the issues or not.

The treasury department is investigating the circumstances surrounding the affidavits filed with the government.

President Wilson spent a good portion of today alone in his study going over the memoranda dealing with the German position.

Persists in Demand It is still asserted positively in usually well informed quarters that the executive is standing firm for his demand that Germany recognize Americans' right to travel in safety and if Germany complies, it was said all danger of a rupture would disappear immediately, matching as the other issues involved can be disposed of leisurely through the regular diplomatic channels.

Envoy Optimistic Because of the optimistic attitude assumed by Ambassador von Bernstorff, after leaving the president yesterday, many officials took the position that the crisis was past. The ambassador has promised to try to make the kaiser's government see that the United States cannot back down. He has agreed to let his home government know that it has under-estimated the depth of feeling in America over Germany's apparent unwillingness to respect what Americans consider their rights. This may help, but well informed officials said there was no use in disguising the fact that the German military element knew all about it when it prepared the note started from Berlin last Saturday.

The president has been warned by the men on whose judgment he most relies, that a single evidence of weakness now certainly will involve this government in at least a diplomatic break with Germany. By "standing pat" on the main issues, and modifying minor matters, these advisors have told the president they have good reason to believe that Germany will make concessions and an amicable agreement be reached. Germany admittedly does not want America's financial resources launched against her. The financial party in Berlin, the big bankers are known to hold that for the empire to break

MACKENZEN CAPTURES PRZEMYSL EARLY TODAY ENDING THE THIRD SIEGE

CONSOLIDATION BILL PASSES THE HOUSE

Fish and Game, Forestry and Three Other Departments Abolished by Measure

VOTE $800,000 FOR HIGHWAYS Monk Bill Raising Age of Consent to 18 Years Engrossed After Hot Debate

MADISON, Wis., June 3.—More legislation of importance was considered by the assembly this morning than at any other sitting so far this session.

By a vote of 72 to 6, the house passed the administration bill abolishing the office of state fish and game warden, state board of forestry, state conservation commission, commissioners of fisheries, state park board, and providing a new state conservation commission.

The Woodard highway bill, appropriating $800,000 for highway purposes was also passed by a vote of 71 to 7.

No debate was occasioned by either of these measures.

When the Monk bill, changing the age of consent from 14 to 18 years was taken up, the storm broke loose. It was finally engrossed by a vote of 52 to 24.

Four substitutes and an amendment were rushed to the clerk's desk when the Van Gordon central board of education bill was taken up. It was laid over as a special order of business until next Tuesday.

The administration bill abolishing the present tax commission was laid over until tonight, when it will be taken up at 7:30 o'clock.

To Probe Bureau The senate this morning passed the Culbertson resolution calling for an investigation of the Wisconsin efficiency bureau by a senate committee.

The lieutenant governor appointed Senators Skogmo, Everett and Arnold as the committee of investigation. The bureau has been issuing a series of pamphlets entitled "Everybody's Business," in which attacks have been made on various educational institutions without disclosing the authorship of the articles or who is behind the bureau.

The Hanson primary election repeal bill was placed on final passage by a vote of 14 to 8. The Skogmo bill amending the present law was placed on next Wednesday's calendar.

The Morgan bill amending the eugenics law was further amended in the senate by the adoption of the Bennett amendment which provides that applicants for a marriage license must make an affidavit stating whether or not they have had venereal, tubercular or other designated diseases. No examination is required if the applicant has had no such diseases.

The Hambrecht bill opening up the entire eligible list to appointment under the civil service law met defeat by a vote of 17 to 6.

VIENNA REPORTS FORTRESS TAKEN BY BELEAGUERERS

Russian Statement Early Today Admits Defense Guns Silenced by Lack of Ammunition

FOCUS OF EASTERN FIGHTING Besieged Twice by Russians Before Taken from Austrians Before Defeat in Carpathian Campaign

LATEST SIEGE LASTS FEW WEEKS Mackenzien Appears Before the Fortress About the Middle of May and Encircles Forts

VIENNA, via Berlin Wireless, June 3.—Przemysl fell before the triumphant armies of General Mackenzien at 3:30 a. m. today, after a three weeks' siege.

Many prisoners, cannon and machine guns and large supplies of food and war munitions were captured by the Austro-German armies. The main body of the Russian army is reported to be retreating in disorder eastward along the railway leading to Lemberg.

A terrific bombardment by Austrian and German howitzers and 12 centimetre guns broke the northern forts to pieces. Large bodies of Austro-German troops rushed into the gaps, driving the enemy back through the town.

German cavalry is harassing the Slavs, who are retiring upon entrenchments in the vicinity of Moseiska.

Capture of the great Galician fortress gives Mackenzien undisputed control of the Jaroslau-Przemysl railway for forty miles to a point south of Przemysl. The railway runs parallel to the new battle front the Russians are now attempting to form behind Przemysl and is of immense strategic value.

It enables the Austro-Germans suddenly to concentrate large bodies for heavy smashes at the Russians in the direction of Lemberg.

The war office early this afternoon had no estimate of the number of Russian prisoners taken, nor of the losses on either side. It was admitted that Mackenzien's forces laid heavily in attacking the outer forts, but the enemy's losses are reported to be appalling.

A comparatively small force of Russians made the final stand against the Austro-Germans. All day yesterday train loads of enemy troops were hurried eastward from Przemysl to rows of entrenchments prepared several weeks ago. Only troops enough to man the guns and to resist flanking attacks were inside the fortress, according to unofficial reports.

Confirmed at Berlin BERLIN, via Wireless to London, June 3.—The German war office this afternoon confirmed the Austrian official claim that Przemysl has been captured.

"We took Przemysl today after the northern fortifications had been stormed during the night," declare the official statement.

London Has Report LONDON, June 3.—It is reported here that the Austro-Germans have recaptured Przemysl.

Three separate sieges of Przemysl have made the great Galician fort one of the memorable centers of the European war.

The Russians first swept down upon Przemysl early in the war and on September 16 opened their artillery attack upon the outer forts. For several weeks Russian howitzers pounded away. Then reinforcements forced the Russians to move off north.

Before the last of October the Russians were again pressing down upon the gates of Przemysl. But in the period of Austrian occupancy the city had been well stocked for a long siege. A Russian army variously estimated at from 125,000 to 200,000 encircled the fortress while other Russian forces pressed the Austro-German armies southward to the Carpathians.

Several attempts were made to relieve Przemysl but the Austrian garrison finally surrendered on March 22, 1915. The Russian war office announced more than 117,000 Austrians were taken prisoners.

A big Russian army, released by the surrender of Przemysl, was

Daddy's Bedtime

The Flowers

Story— And the Dew

And a Gem.

"YOU children have long admired the opal ring that mamma wears," said daddy. "Now I'll tell you a little make believe story of how that lovely gem came to be made."

"Long ago, my dear Jack and Evelyn, the story is that a purple violet grew at the edge of a big dark wood. There it thrived in the sunshine and the occasional showers, and it was a very happy little violet. And because it was happy it was lovelier than ever."

"One bright summer morning, when the air was like wine and all nature was in that harmony that makes kiddies and grown people just glad to be alive, a clear drop of dew chanced to fall right on this lovely violet. Now, seen through this clear drop of dew, the delicate colors of the violet shone with more loveliness than ever."

"The inquisitive old sun, always trying to see what he can see, noticed a sparkle on the leaves of the pretty violet that he had never noticed before. So he sent one of his bright beams down there to find what there was of it. And a little bit of the beam remained, imprisoned with the purple sheen of the violet within the trembling drop of dew."

"But that wasn't all. There were still some more hues to be captured. That drop of dew was a regular shining little magnet to attract loveliness."

"There chanced to grow close to the violet a lovely red rose, a queen of the wood. She had never noticed the violet before, being haughty, as roses are apt to be. But now her curiosity was attracted by the flaming little drop of dew, and she bent over in the breeze to see what had caused this queer and beautiful thing. And what do you think? Why, the rose's color also was caught and penned in the drop of dew, together with the other hues."

"The sky above, that was as blue as the sea, looked down at the dewdrop, and its color was also caught by that greedy little bit of water that was now as full as it could hold of colors, you would have thought. The green leaves of the adjacent forest also peeped down to see what was causing this marvelous change, and the different shades of green were all caught and held, like the colors that had entered it before, by the shimmering dewdrop."

"Then what do you think happened? Why, the cold north wind, as it has a habit once in a while of doing on a summer day, came whipping by to make the leaves and everything shiver and quiver."

"Well, the north wind saw that drop of dew and stopped to admire it. And he lingered so long admiring it that the dewdrop froze. And a man found it and called it an opal and gave it to his little girl."

The house telephone at Jim Kendleton's bedside tinkled gently. Jim, who had arrived at midnight and was not yet asleep, yawned and picked up the receiver.

His aunt from her room on the floor below:

"Jim, there are burglars in the house! Some one has taken my emerald necklace!"

"Are you sure, Aunt Maria?"

"I heard the knob of my door turn and I thought of my emeralds and they are not under the mattress. I was doubtful about that new maid that Binks sent down yesterday. I mistrusted her gray eyes and straw-colored hair. She may be leaving the house this instant, Jim!" in agonized tone.

"Coming!" whispered Jim cautiously and, throwing on a few garments, he wrapped a dressing gown about his spare form, stuffed a revolver into his pocket and quietly stepped out into the darkened corridor.

His slippers made no sound on the carpet, but from somewhere below came a muffled sound—like a light step on a thickly padded surface.

Some one was coming upstairs. Perhaps the guilty maid servant, to hide her ill-gotten gains in her room in the attic above the third floor, where Aunt Maria's relatives were usually housed on their rare visits to that irascible old lady.

Jim smiled confidently. Poor little criminal maid! Creeping so unsuspectingly into the web of his watchful presence. He crouched at the head of the stairs, started a little when he made out a shadowy form rising out of the gloom of the staircase, waited until she turned the corner at the newel post and then deftly clapped his handkerchief over her lips.

"Don't scream," he said quietly. "Just hand over the emeralds."

His left hand supporting her felt the silent ripple of flowing hair, and the trembling of her slender form thrilled him.

"I'm not going to hurt you," he reassured her. "Just give me the emeralds."

Something cold and hard was pressed into his right hand and, looking down, he saw the vague sparkle of jewels. The necklace was heavy and he dropped it in the pocket of his dressing gown.

Now what was he to do with his shrinking prisoner? Turn her over to Aunt Maria's tender mercies? No, he would give her a chance to get away.

Half way down the corridor was a huge wardrobe in which Aunt Maria kept some extra cloaks and wraps—half-worn garments which she was quite apt to give away to the needy when help was required. Jim Kendleton knew about this wardrobe and its contents and now he led his prisoner to it, still holding his handkerchief to her lips.

"Will you promise not to scream if I take my hand away?" he whispered.

"I promise!" she murmured.

His hand came away and she weakly leaned against the wardrobe door.

"I'll get you a cloak and you can leave at once. My advice is to get as far away from here as possible—ah, who is that?"

A light flickered in the hall below.

"Get in here!" hissed Jim, and he bundled the girl into the wardrobe and turned the key. He walked toward the stairway and met Aunt Maria coming up, candle in hand, a lace boudoir cap set rakishly over one ear and her black eyes snapping dangerously.

"Snail!" she barked at him. "I might have been murdered in my bed before I could hope for any help from you, sir!"

"I'm sorry, Aunt Maria," began Jim apologetically. "I've been so busy getting your emeralds for you—"

"My emeralds? You got them? Good boy!" approved Aunt Maria all in a breath. "Where is that minx?"

"Gone!" fabricated Jim.

"Good riddance to her. I'll never do another stroke of business with Hinks's Agency again! Come down to my room, Jim, and give me the emeralds."

"Just a minute, Aunt Maria." Jim glided back to the wardrobe and unlocked the door. Then he went down the long hall and rejoined his aunt. Together they went down to the next floor and presently the door of Mrs. Maria Woodworth's boudoir closed behind them.

But the prisoner in the wardrobe had heard none of this conversation. The close atmosphere and the stifling smell of moth balls had been overwhelming, and she had quietly fainted away.

Aunt Maria's boudoir was blazing with lights when they entered. She sank into a great stuffed chair and held out her hand for the necklace.

"Let me see it," she said, impatiently.

Jim thrust a hand in his pocket, pulled out the jewels, and then stared at them with mouth agape.

These were not emeralds that dripped with blue fire and flame from his fingers! It was a magnificent sapphire necklace that put his Aunt Maria's famous emeralds to shame.

"You said emeralds, Aunt Maria?" he questioned weakly. "You are sure you didn't mean sapphires?"

"You are crazy, Jim! Of course, I meant emeralds. I always be-Heved you were color blind—now I am convinced of it."

"Tell me where you keep your emeralds, Aunt Maria," persisted Jim obstinately, as he dropped the necklace back in his pocket. Something was wrong somewhere, he argued, dazedly.

"Goose!" she complimented him. "I either keep them in a chamois bag under the mattress of my bed, in the shoe bag in my closet—in the toes of the white slippers that are too small for me, worse luck—or in that little pocket in the carving of the headboard of my bed. There, Mr. Detective, are you satisfied?"

Jim was pulling up the mattress—no emeralds. The pocket in the headboard was empty, but in the toe of a white satin slipper, which was too small for Aunt Maria, worse luck, were the famous Woodworth emeralds.

"Oh, pshaw!" exclaimed Aunt Maria as she ran them through her fingers. "I might have known they were in there! I'm going to give these to your bride, Jim, when you select one!"

"Thanks, Aunt Maria," said Jim miserably. "I guess I'll get back to bed. I'm sorry about that burglar scare, but it's turned out all right."

"Good night, boy, and don't be cross with your old aunt for routing you out at this ungodly hour," she chuckled as she opened the door for him to depart.

Jim Kendleton mounted the stairs three at a time, reached the wardrobe to find the door open and his prisoner gone. Where?

Who was she, with her slender, lissome form, her fall of silken, flamed hair, her frightened little voice and her subtle magnetism? Whose was the sapphire necklace? Was it hers? And who was she? For he was Aunt Maria's only guest.

These questions haunted him until morning, and then he made a leisurely toilet and went down to breakfast. He was late, and Aunt Maria was seated at the table, for she never waited for any one. She was not alone.

In the chair opposite Jim's seat was a girl, slender and fair, with adorable face and wide gray eyes. She was rather pale and she was telling a story to Aunt Maria with much animation, and Aunt Maria was chuckling over it in a most malicious way.

"Hester, this is my nephew, Jim Kendleton—you've heard me speak of him. All the Kendletons are color blind." She laughed at Jim's quick blush. "Jim, you've always known about the Jenways, of Overbrook?"

This is Hester, my favorite of them all. Sometimes she takes pity on me. She has come down now to attend the New Year's ball at Lord's. She brought some of her pretty jewels, too. More's the pity!"

"Yes?" faltered Jim, uncomfortably aware that this charming guest must have been his prisoner of the night before.

"In the night I telephoned her that burglars were in the house and the foolish child picked up her sapphire necklace—it's her most precious possession—and ran down stairs to my room. She couldn't get inside and so she went back to her room on the third floor, and at the head of the stairs she met a tall man with a murderous voice, who commanded her to hand over her jewels, which she did."

"Good heavens, I am sorry!" burst out Jim contritely, and Miss Janway looked quite bewildered until Aunt Maria explained all about it in her own way. Then Jim sheepishly produced the sapphire necklace, and told his side of the story, much to the delight of the heroine and much to his own satisfaction, for an acquaintance begun in this unconventional way could never be commonplace.

After breakfast he was starting for a walk with Hester Janway, when Aunt Maria called him back into the hall.

"Jim," she said impressively, "remember, I told you I would give the emeralds to your bride."

Jim blushed. "I'll hold you to that, Aunt Maria," he laughed.

"And don't forget—I'd rather they belonged to Hester than any one else."

"It won't be my fault if they don't," he called over his shoulder as he hastened to join his erstwhile prisoner, who had now imprisoned him in the meshes of her sweetness and charm.

WITH NOBLE PURPOSE

President Wilson's notice to Mexico will not satisfy jingo capital; it will not satisfy the hand-o'-th'-mighty class of whom War Lord Roosevelt is spokesman. But it will satisfy pretty much everybody else in the United States, which is pretty much everybody.

"They (the people of the United States) want nothing for themselves in Mexico," says the president. He announces the broad and generous position of this country as big brother to the other American nations. Only as an instrument in the rescue of Mexico from anarchy and the establishment there of a truly constitutional government will this country intervene. How disappointing to the pure hunters, who hold a decidedly different idea of intervention!

Attempts to forecast the outcome are mere hazards. The factions in Mexico may get together for peace, or they may join to fight the United States. In any event the people of the United States will unitedly support the broad, generous and humane proposal of their president for the salvation of the starving mob-ridden Mexican people.

IT BREATHES OF LA CROSSE

Every loyal citizen of La Crosse should possess himself of one of the Souvenir programs which the State Normal school is preparing for the presentation of Howard M. Jones' "Masque of Marsh and River." It is so distinctively ours, as if written in the heart of the city. The vignette of Granddad gives us the physical emblem of La Crosse. The picture of Howard M. Jones, the brilliant young author, and three hundred of our young people who will participate in the play are a section from the life of La Crosse as all of us are living its best ideals. Put the kernel of the souvenir in the text of the Masque. Its scene is laid in La Crosse, its theme a vital issue in La Crosse. It localizes a problem of every community. Granddad is a lasting monument—if the blasts permit; worthy critics predict that in the literature of America the "Masque of Marsh and River" will be equally enduring. Once in a great while a writer touches the heart of a great problem of civilization. Mr. Jones has done this with unerring directness, and withal in a manner so versatile, so clever that one unwilling to be convinced absorbs the message in pursuit of the captivating story in which it is clothed.

A HORSE SENSE RESOLUTION

Alderman Worth's resolution to authorize and equip the board of public works to resurface and conserve the paved streets of La Crosse is one of the soundest measures that has come before the aldermen, and is of importance equal to that of original street construction. We have paved well and wisely in La Crosse, and we have shamefully neglected the pavement. To mix a metaphor, a "stitch in time saves nine." Some of our pavement already needs nine stitches, but they are not beyond repair. Let the city restore them and keep them in that constant state of repair which both economy and public use and enjoyment of our thoroughfares requires.

LAYING THE FOUNDATION

The assurance of President Wilson that the United States has no designs upon Mexican territory will strengthen the growing confidence with which South American republics regard this country. The call of the A. B. C. mediators laid the foundation for a common understanding, and the European war has further developed appreciation of the common grounds and community of interests that bind the American republics together.

If out of it all shall come a new fathering of the Monroe doctrine, with all the free American states behind it, the foundation of safety and prosperity of the Western Hemisphere will have been soundly laid.

You never can tell. Even a man who wants the earth objects to having mud thrown at him.

A true Christian is a man who would rather tell the truth than be popular.

Quips and Cranks and Wanton Wiles

The Explanation

Congressman Allan B. Walsh of New Jersey was reminded of this little incident when the conversation turned to the multitudinous questions that are put to the poor old railroad man.

One afternoon a traveling salesman from a big city happened in the little town of Cranbury, N. J., and after completing his business he started to return to the railroad station, which is quite a distance from the town proper.

"Talk about towns," he breathlessly remarked to a native as he eventually reached the platform, "this dump is certainly the limit."

"That's what they all say," indifferently responded the native, with a casual glance at the other. "I've lost no end of good time beating it over that bloomin' road," impatiently continued the salesman. "What do you suppose they put the station so far from the town for?" "Darned if I know," carelessly answered the native, "unless they wanted to have it near the railroad track."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Increasing the Humidity

Jones was one of those men who grumble at everything and everybody. He was once attacked by inflammatory rheumatism and was carefully nursed by his wife, who was very devoted to him, in spite of his fault-finding disposition. His suffering caused her to burst into tears sometimes as she sat at his bedside.

One day a friend came in and asked him how he was getting on. "Badly, badly," he exclaimed, "and it's all my wife's fault." "Is it possible?" asked the friend, in surprise.

"Yes," the doctor told me that humidity was bad for me, and that woman sits and cries just to make it moist in the room."

"Granny's" Tribute

Rev. Mr. Lawrence had boarded for so long a time with the Granby family that when he was obliged to remove to a new field of labor, the family keenly felt his loss.

"The best pastor we've ever had in this town," declared Father Granby, heartily. "I don't expect to see his equal again."

"Such good company," said Mother Granby, "and so sympathetic if the least thing went wrong."

"He was the easiest man to cook for I ever knew," contributed Aunt Ann. "He was always satisfied with what he had to eat, and he never grumbled."

"He had such a serene disposition," sighed Sister Laura. "He brought an atmosphere of peace whenever he came into the house."

"Granny" Granby, in her corner by the fireplace, shook her head dolefully.

THE RED MIRAGE

By I. A. R. WYLIE

Both men were very calm, very self-possessed in their grave courtesy to each other. Had the filthy cell been a fashionable club room they could not have shown a greater coolness, a greater ease of manner.

"Who goes with Bertrand on the round?" Farquhar asked almost with indifference.

"Harding. He knows. He will do all he can. He is quiet now—they are in the next cell."

The drunken shouts subsided suddenly into a cowed sullen silence. They heard the sergeant's savage abuse, the jangle of keys, the clang of an iron door slammed violently to. Instantly the chorus broke out afresh with a redoubled violence, in which all other sound was lost—

"Notre petit officier, c'est un lache!" Farquhar came out the shadows, to the corporal's side.

"There must be no struggle," he said. "It would be quite useless, and we must keep Harding out of this."

"Yes, of course." "You said I had friends here. Who?"

"An Englishman for one, who calls himself Preston."

"What does he know?" "Everything—more than you do, Don Quixote. But wisdom invariably comes too late in this world. Hush!"

With a roar of laughter the song came to an end, and in the brief lull that followed the two men listened intently. Outside in the corridor they could hear neither footsteps nor voices. Both sounds seemed to have been blotted out, suddenly and completely. Yet the silence was not absolute. There was movement. They could hear it brushing along the wall, against the door. There was a smothered stifled sound, like the masked agonized breathing of an exhausted runner; it rose for an instant to a definite, inarticulate cry, and then dropped again with a thud into a dead hush. Without warning Gotz wrenched open the door. By the dim light of the lantern falling into the now darkened passage they saw the body of a man lying face downward on the stone. He still breathed. Beyond him, leaning against the wall, was the German doctor. His head was thrown back; they saw his face—a white mask, made whiter by the dark line of blood trickling from the half-open mouth. His eyes shone to meet them with a boyish triumph.

"He wanted to go in—I knew—we fought and I managed to stun him—the road is clear, Englishman."

"Good God, do you think we are going to leave you there?" Farquhar had sprung across the prostrate body, but Harding waved him back with a gentle movement of finality.

"You must."

"You are hurt."

"He got at me with his bayonet. It's all over. Go—don't make it all in vain."

Farquhar caught the cold fast-weakening hand in his. Danger was forgotten in grief and self-reproach.

"Must I bring death and destruction to you also?"

The fading eyes brightened. "This is not death—not destruction. It was my chance—to make good." He faltered and staggered to his knees. "Gotz von Berlichingen—I—I have known always—Your Highness—greet our Fatherland—"

He made a last effort to draw himself up to the salute and fell quietly forward. There was now no sound in the corridor save the breathing of the unconscious corporal. Over the dead body of the little legionary the eyes of the two men met.

"You will forget what you have heard," Gotz said simply. "The road is clear. We must not make the sacrifice a useless one. Come!"

"The sentries—"

"The sentries are the men you saved. The sentries are blind tonight."

They hurried on silently down the passage, past the barred doors behind which despair and madness still howled memory into stupor. At the entrance to the prison-house a sentry stood on guard. He did not look at them or seem to hear them. A hot, stifling summer wind drove into their faces, and overhead a phantom army of clouds scurried before the moon and plunged the empty courtyard into alternate light and darkness. Gotz led the way to the iron gates, which stood out like delicate filigree against the light of the avenue beyond. The sergeant in charge had long since retired, yawning and cursing, into the guard-house. Two sentries kept watch. They looked neither to the right nor left. As Farquhar passed one of them raised his head as though to watch the rapidly changing sky.

"Good luck to you, Englishman." The avenue was deserted. Gotz touched his companion on the elbow. "We have only a quarter of an hour's start instead of three hours. We must hurry as much as we dare. In the boulevards walk like the rest. If we get separated remember—in the Palm Grove outside the northern wall."

They began to run. There was no sound save their own rapid footfalls, no movement save that of their own shadows flashing in and out amid the trees. At the turning which led into the chief boulevard they pulled up and let themselves drift with the thin stream of belated pleasure-seekers. Farquhar pulled his wide-brimmed hat deeper over his eyes. The crowd was now too small for safety. They passed under the brilliant lights of the cafes, where officers sag and drank their absinthe and watched the passers-by with idle amusement. Gotz, still in uniform, saluted with mechanical regularity. To be stopped even for an instant was to be detected. Farquhar kept to the outside of the pavement. At a cross-road a straggling caravan caused a momentary blockade, and the crowd jostled one another with an irritable impatience born of the heat, bad wine and the hour. Farquhar was pushed up against an officer. The man turned grumbling, and they stared at each other with clear recognition. It was the little major.

Why He Liked Venice

Miss Hunter took a tour with her father, spending some time in Italy. Shortly after returning she was relating some of the adventures of the trip to a friend who was calling.

"Father liked all the Italian cities very much," she said, "but Venice was his favorite."

"I can readily understand that," answered the friend. "Your father would naturally prefer Venice, with its gondolas, and St. Mark's, and Michael Angelos—"

"Oh, no, it wasn't that," said Miss Hunter, "but you see, he could sit in the hotel and fish out of the window."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Wise Bugs

Several farmers were sitting around the cracker barrel in the country store, telling how the potato pests had got into their crops. Said one:

"Them pests ate my whole crop in two weeks."

"Then another spoke up: 'Then I ate my crop in two days, and then sat around on the trees and waited for me to plant more.'"

Here a sales agent for a seed house broke in:

"Well, boys," he said, "that may be so, but I'll tell you what I saw in our own warehouse. I saw four or five beetles examining the books about a week before planting time to see who had bought the best seed."

Lay-to for a spell and swing on this:

You'll start an old-pal-party via a pipe or a makin's cigarette quick as a flash, as soon as you realize it's a live bet to let your good money rub up against some Prince Albert tobacco. Why, it's like beating back to the bushes for old-home week, P. A.'s so friendly, so chummy-like.

You see, Prince Albert can't bite your tongue, or any other man's; nor parch throats. Because it's made by a patented process that cuts out the bite and parch and lets you hear the song of the joyus jimmy pipe and the makin's cigarette all the day long!

PRINCE ALBERT

just hands you home-made questions like these:

Were you ever pipe-happy? Did you ever hit a brand that just pushed pleasure against your palate? The kind that sort of teased your smokeappetite for some more fire-up, then another—and so on, right to the pillow-period!

Well, that's P. A., no matter how you hook it up—pipe or cigarette. It just jams-joy into your system! You nail that fact hot off the bat, because it's case-cards information! And handed out to you for personal and immediate attention as being about as real and true as you've heard since Hector was a pup!

P. A. is sold in the toppy red bag for the price of a jitney ride, 5c; tidy red tin, 10c; pound and half-pound tin humidors—and the classy pound crystal-glass humidor with the sponge-moistener top that's not only a joyus thing to have at home and at the office, but it keeps P. A. in the highest state of perfection.

R. J. REYNOLDS TOBACCO CO., Winston-Salem, N. C.

Here is Casimiro Irado, 104 years old, who lives in Watsonville, Cal. He has a remarkable memory and clearly recalls the war in Spain in 1822, when he was a lad of 12 summers. Irado has been a smoker all his life, and today he smokes no dearer, no truer friend than his old jimmy pipe. Irado has just been elected a member of the Prince Albert "old-time jimmy-pipers club."

ASSEMBLY FAVORS MINIMUM WAGE OF TEN DOLLARS

Committee Reports for Passage Vint Bill to Give Living Wage to Women Who Toil

MADISON, Wis., June 3.—The assembly committee on judiciary today reported for passage the Vint bill fixing the minimum wage for women in certain establishments in the state at $10 a week. The committee was divided over the measure, the report being five to three in favor of passage. Under the terms of the bill the term "living wage" shall mean compensation for labor paid, whether by time, piece work, or otherwise, sufficient to enable the employee receiving it to maintain herself consistent with her welfare. The bill then provides that "in the case of the employment of any female over the age of 18 years in any manufacturing, mechanical or mercantile establishment, or in any laundry, restaurant, confectionery store, telegraph office, telephone exchange or express or transportation establishment "living wage" shall not mean less than $10 a week.

Wherever the employer furnishes such female with board or room, in whole or in part, or other like service, the value of such board or room or other like service shall be considered by the industrial commission in determining the living wage.

Those favoring the indefinite postponement of the bill are Assemblymen Falk, Lake Mills; Mortensen, Juneau county; and Morgan of Pepin county.

Buttermakers' Bill Up

The assembly committee on agriculture spent the afternoon yesterday hearing arguments on the bills to repeal the state aid to the Wisconsin Buttermakers' association and to the Southern Wisconsin Dairymen and Cheesemakers' association. Chairman H. J. Grell of the committee presented a score of letters that had been received from dairymen in all sections of the state in favor of the defeat of the measure. The indications are that both bills will be reported for indefinite postponement. The committee also considered a new bill for the licensing of the cheese and buttermakers of the state. It was practically decided to recommend this bill for passage as soon as the committee could have certain changes made in the measure, which will lower the penalties for violations of the law. This bill has the support of nearly all of the butter and cheese organizations.

Discuss Tuition Bill

The senate committee on education was urged yesterday to make no further amendments in the Hambrecht tuition fee bill, its terms under the amendments added in the assembly being agreeable to both the author and President Van Hise. The latter made it plain, however, that he was opposed to the raise in fees at all. In view of the fact that three such increases have been made in recent years. If the bill had to pass, he favored it as amended in the assembly. The changes provide that the incidental fees be included in the amount to be charged non-residents, namely, $150 per year. This would be an increase of only $24 per year. It also allows the faculty and regents to award scholarships to certain worthy students in lieu of fees.

John A. Aylward appeared against the bill, following President Van Hise. Assemblyman Hambrecht was its proponent before the committee.

NORTH SIDE BAND AWAITING A STAND FOR PARK CONCERT

That the first open air band concert by the North Side Military band will be given inside of two weeks at Copeland park was the assurance today of Melvin Lokken, president of the organization. He based his statement on the promises of Park Commissioner John H. Forrer that the band stand will be erected within that time.

Semi-weekly practices continue to be held by the band, under the direction of Prof. Bridgman of the state normal school. The band now numbers twenty-eight members, as against twelve at organization last winter.

CARS OFF TRACK AT PRESCOTT

Traffic on the Burlington was tied up for several hours yesterday afternoon and last night as the result of the derailment of several freight cars at Prescott, Wis. Freight traffic was suspended entirely until early this morning and passenger trains Nos. 51, 58 and 48, due here at 6:30, 10:30 and 12 p. m., respectively, were run into La Crosse over the Milwaukee tracks.

MOVIE CENSOR SAYS WIND IS SCANTY GARB FOR MAIDEN

CHICAGO, June 3.—Chicagoans who looked forward with true artists' fervor to seeing "The Island of Regeneration" in the movies are disappointed today. They longed to see September Morn's sister, clad in nature's bathing suit, drape herself carelessly over moss-covered rocks with her sea-weed hair flying in the wind and the wild waves gently caressing her pink toes, but Major Funkhouser, Chicago's Anthony Comstock, has decreed otherwise. If the picture is shown, he said, it will be with the fair maiden clad in something besides the wind.

TRAINMEN AND CAR COLLIDE AT PARK

West Bound Oak Grove Car Hits Automobile at Ball Park and All Are Shaken

Six members of the Brotherhood of Burlington Trainmen narrowly escaped serious injury last night when the automobile in which they made the trip to League park for baseball practice was struck by a westbound Oak Grove cemetery street car on La Crosse street, when backing from the entrance to the ball park.

The car, the property of Harvey Boyle, 1516 Kane street, was damaged to the extent of several hundred dollars, the rear wheels and the fender being completely demolished. It was dragged several feet by the street car. The party was composed of Harvey Boyle, who drove the car, Francis Keaveney, William Wais, Roy Davis, Joseph Nally and Frank Freehoff.

All of the party escaped with but a few scratches.

The coroner's jury has comparatively few secrets to tell.

NEW CAR ROUTE NEARS COMPLETION

Street cars will be running over the Rose street viaduct in two weeks, provided the brick paving is finished in that time, Superintendent Frank Przywojski said today. The tracking for the new line is practically complete, operations being discontinued now until the brick is laid. The tracks are laid on Rose street up to St. Cloud street and a part of the curve installed. A crew was at work today hanging new trolley cable on the upper end of the north side. A new crossing has been laid over the Burlington tracks at the La Crosse river.

Possibly it is your business, if you want to get tight, but it isn't much of a business.

Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have PAREGORIC or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and a FEW DROPS TOO MANY will produce the SLEEP FROM WHICH THERE IS NO WAKING. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labelling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrup," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician knowing what it is composed. CASTORIA DOES NOT CONTAIN NARCOTICS, if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

TWELVE LITTLE PIGS AND HOW THEY GROW

Twelve little pigs, their mother dead, have twelve homes in the vicinity of Grand Crossing here, but the names of the twelve railroad men who are "mothering" them have been cut out by the censor for the reason that city ordinances forbids pigs in the city limits.

They are doomed to seek shelter elsewhere for they cannot help but roll in mud puddles—but here is the story of the twelve little pigs.

A consignment of hogs left a western state over the Burlington for a station east of La Crosse several days ago. Upon reaching here the even dozen little piggies first saw the light of day. The trip was too much for the mother and she breathed her last.

Railroad men held a conference.

"They belong to the person who should have received the mother," the men reasoned, "but they will die," they concluded, and so they were adopted.

STREET REPAIRS ARE ORDERED BY DAY LABOR PLAN

City Engineer Authorized to Proceed on St. Andrews Street; Permanent Up-keep Plan Proposed

The city of La Crosse, through the council committee on special street improvements which met last night, went on record for a permanent program of street repairing and paving up-keep to be started with the resurfacing of St. Andrews street and continue with the repairing of West Avenue, Eighth street and other paved streets where the surface is worn full of holes.

Work of resurfacing St. Andrews street will be done by day labor under the supervision of the city engineer and the city will purchase an asphalt pot and suitable tools for doing this and other jobs.

Under the plans of the city engineer, the entire granite top will be removed and will be relaid with an asphalt binder at a cost of about $5,000.

Two contractors bid on the improvements at the last moment but the repair policy was adopted on motion of Alderman Worth, who declared one of the duties of the engineering department and Board of Public works is to keep streets in repair. He pointed out that many of the streets are badly worn and that utensils and tools purchased could be used for this work.

Alderman Rosell supported Alderman Worth, declaring that the trouble with the public works department of La Crosse is that the aldermen have shown lack of confidence in the men elected to do such work and it is about time they were allowed to go ahead and show their worth.

RAINS DELAY KANSAS HARVEST

TOPEKA, Kas., June 3.—The Kansas harvest is late, due to the heavy rains. Wheat cutting will be delayed from ten to twenty days according to Z. G. Hopkins of the state free employment bureau, who is holding up the call for 35,000 hands. Hopkins thinks June 20 will see the opening of the harvest in southern Kansas instead of June 10—the usual time of cutting.

CITY MAY YIELD REVENUE TO RAISE WAGES OF CARMEN

CHICAGO, June 3.—Peaceful settlement of the differences between 11,000 surface car employees and 3,500 guards and motormen on the elevated roads was hoped for today. The men demand higher pay and shorter working hours.

Because the city receives 55 per cent of the net receipts of the companies, Mayor Thompson today decided that the city shall take an active part in settling the differences. He planned today to call a conference of city officials and representatives of the men and the employers. Expressions of opinion were to be asked today as to the city yielding a portion of its 55 per cent to give the men the increase asked.

HOME RULE BILL KILLED BY HOUSE
MADISON, Wis., June 3.—The assembly sprung a surprise this morning when, after an earnest debate, it killed by a vote of forty to thirty-one the Arnold joint resolution amending the constitution by giving towns and cities home rule subject to the constitution and the general laws of the state.

This amendment was endorsed by Gov. Philipp during the last campaign and was passed in the senate by a comfortable majority.

The Akeley resolution to amend the constitution for the purpose of making sheriffs eligible for re-election to succeed themselves was concurred in by a vote of 51 to 29.

HEAVY LOSSES IN TURK ATTACKS

Athens Declares Probable Casualty Total of Moslems in Dardanelles Will Be 100,000

ATHENS, June 3.—The Turks have suffered terrible losses in night attacks on Gallipoli peninsula in the past forty-eight hours. Mytilene dispatches today said the heavy Turkish casualties in the recent fighting make it appear probable that their losses since the Dardanelles fighting began will total close to 100,000.

Offered by Germans, the Turks are hurling themselves against the allied positions near Gaba Tepete in close formation. The allies have fought ashore powerful searchlights which sweep the advancing enemy columns with a glare of light and give aim to machine gun fire.

The Turks have been heavily reinforced in the past few days.

F-4 IN DANGER OF BREAK IN TWO

Lies Bottom Upward with Top Caved in at the Forward End

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Admiral Moore reported from Honolulu today that the F-4 was in danger of breaking in two, but it would nevertheless be possible to raise the pieces. If it did not break, he added, a sinking of the submarine's bow threatened temporarily to block the channel.

Operations were suspended owing to heavy weather.

The vessel was described as lying on its starboard side nearly bottom upwards, with its top caved in between frame 62 and 65, the tear extending to the fenders on each side, no damage to the hull aft except for a few broken rivets, and the rear engine room bulkhead apparently pulled through.

"What is the bravest thing you ever did, Colonel?" asked the hero-worshiper. The grizzled veteran pondered. "Well," he mused, "last evening my wife sent me to the kitchen to fire the cook."

RUMANIA DEMANDS NOT ONLY AUSTRIAN BUT RUSSIAN LAND AS WELL

LONDON, June 3.—Rumania has made territorial demands upon Russia in payment for her entrance into the war on the side of the allies. Reports reached here from Rome today that not only does Rumania want assurances from the allies that she can retain all Transylvania territory her troops occupy, but that she wants Russia to cede to her at least part of Russian Bessarabia. King Victor Emanuel, the Rome dispatches said, has offered to mediate between Russia and Rumania in an effort to reach an amicable understanding that will insure Rumania's participation.

Diplomatic circles here received the reports with considerable surprise. Bucharest dispatches for several days have indicated that Rumania was satisfied with the allies' guarantees that if she marched against Austria she would be allowed to retain all territory she occupied. The Rome dispatches indicated a new development that may at least delay Rumania's entry. Bessarabia is one of the richest of the Russian southeastern provinces and separates Rumania from Russia.

'BILL' NEUMEISTER IS OUT AGAIN; SEEN IN DENVER

Former Race Track Promoter of La Crosse Said to Have Escaped from Fond du Lac Asylum

Word has reached La Crosse friends of William Neumeister, former wealthy owner of the Neumeister race track, which operated here in 1895, that Mr. Neumeister has escaped from the Fond du Lac insane asylum.

The TRIBUNE is in receipt of a letter from Judge E. C. Raymond of Sundance, Wyo., to the effect that he had seen Neumeister in Denver, Col., several months ago.

Neumeister was committed to Mendota and West Salem asylums innumerable times by La Crosse courts. "He would break out of them and then break back in again," said John Brindley today, when he heard of the affair. The last time he was sent to Mendota from La Crosse was October 7, 1912. Mr. Neumeister has not been in La Crosse since.

According to Judge Raymond Neumeister was endeavoring to promote some imaginary scheme in the Colorado city.

He is said to have lost a large fortune in the race track venture here twenty years ago.

AN ANSWER OF CHIEFS TO WAGON ORDER EAGERLY AWAITED

With the United States now would be a grave mistake.

Germany very easily can make concessions now. Her note did not take a stand on international law as applied to submarine warfare.

Germany said it could not stop reprisals with submarines and it is certain that the president told Count von Bernstorff yesterday that this government did not expect her to do so.

All that was asked was that the rules of warfare be observed so that the lives of neutrals, their property, and the lives of noncombatants shall be safeguarded. With that assurance, Germany will find the administration willing to aid her in planning the method that will carry it into effect without aiding Germany's enemies.

The new German note, it is assumed, will be approved in its final form by the cabinet tomorrow and will then be sent to Berlin. It certainly will be sent this week.

THE CASINO TO SHOW SALAMBO

Gustave Flaubert's famous story, which Sir Arthur Simonds, the distinguished English critic, pronounced the most perfect historical novel in any language, has been produced in pictures at an expense estimated at $100,000.

he producer has taken advantage of the book's dramatic incidents that lend themselves to strong pictorialization. Numerous scenes were introduced having very little action. This is not drawback, as there is a constant succession of swiftly moving incidents crammed full of exciting moments, and the slow scenes, because of their spectacular nature, served to give historical atmosphere, enabling the spectator for the time being to imagine that he was present at events in the stirring times of 2,000 years ago in the only city that succeeded in disputing for any length of time the supremacy of Rome, the mistress of the ancient world.

The picture is exciting in the extreme, and certain scenes—very necessary to the logical continuation of the plot—have been introduced with all the delicacy necessary to prevent offense among particular audiences.

Salambo will be at the Casino on Friday and Saturday.

You pay all expenses and let the other fellow share the profits. That is life.

rushed southward for the drive by which the Russians attempted to pierce the Carpathians and invade Hungary.

Third Siege Begins in May With the Russians beaten back in the Carpathian fighting, General Mackensen at the beginning of May began the drive that sent the Russians reeling back in West Galicia.

Two weeks later he arrived before Przemyśl with a great Austro-German army and began the third siege.

Mackensen's left wing crossed the San and menaced Przemyśl from the north. His right wing pressed northward from the south to encircle Przemyśl by seizing the Przemyśl-Lemberg railway. In front of Przemyśl the famous 42 centimetres began battering at the forts on the west.

Berlin announced two days ago that Bavarian troops had captured three of the outer forts, and reported additional advances yesterday.

The Russian war office, in a statement issued at Petrograd today, admitted Russian reverses at Przemyśl in a frank statement that confirmed the belief the Russians were short of ammunition.

Petrograd Report PETROGRAD, June 3.—Przemyśl is now being bombarded by huge sixteen inch Austro-German siege howitzers and other heavy guns. The war office admitted in an official statement this forenoon that the enemy captured several Russian guns, "which fought until they ran out of ammunition."

The enemy's heaviest attacks are being delivered against the northern front of Przemyśl. The famous 42-centimetres, used by the Germans to level the Belgian forts of Namur and Liege, are sending great shells crashing against the northern forts.

Today's official statement is the first admission from the war office that the Russians defending Przemyśl are short of ammunition.

The Germans are using almost precisely the same tactics they employed against the Belgian forts at the beginning of the war. Their columns move forward in close formation at double quick time. With a few hundred yards of the Russian cannon they break into a rapid dash and attempt to storm the works.

The enemy losses have been frightful.

HUNDREDS ATTEND NORMAL EXCURSION

Moonlight Outing Given by Fraternal Reserve Association in Evening Attracts Nearly as Many

More than 900 excursionists from La Crosse participated yesterday in the annual normal school excursion to Winona on the big Streckfuss side wheel steamer St. Paul. It was the first trip the vessel has made to Winona this season.

The boat left the levee at 9:45 a. m. and arrived at Winona at 2 p. m., returning at 4:30. The crowd arrived here at 7:30 p. m. and the vessel took another excursion at 8:30 p. m.

The moonlight excursion given by the Fraternal Reserve association was almost as successful as the Winona trip. There was nearly as large a crowd and the weather being ideal all had a good time. Captain John Streckfuss and his son Vernon are in personal charge of the boat. They will carry an excursion out of Winona tonight.

Ab Adkins says his son-in-law is the sort of financier who expects dividends from a shooting gallery.

TRAVELERS SCORE GOVERNOR'S VETO OF TIPPING LAW

Executive to Defend His Action Before Eau Claire Convention of Travelers on Saturday

LA CROSSE MEN CANDIDATES

J. W. Callaway, Grand Treasurer, and A. H. Worth, Member of Council, Again in Race

EAU CLAIRE, Wis., June 3.—(Special.)—Governor Emanuel L. Philipp was severely criticised by J. H. A. Locker, Waukesha, for vetoing the "anti-tipping" bill which was passed by a large majority of both houses, in the opening address of the seventeenth annual grand council of the United Commercial Travelers of Wisconsin, in convention here this week.

Governor Philipp is scheduled to address the convention Saturday and will probably explain his views on the plan of the travelers to do away with the tipping evil.

The bill was introduced for the travelers by Senator Otto Bosshard of La Crosse, who acted on the part of thousands of "drummers" who desired to do away with the present plan of remuneration of hotel and railway employees.

Big Latch Key Presented The convention opened at 9:40 o'clock, with one of the largest attendances in the history of the organization. Opening ceremonies were performed by Post Counsellor E. W. F. Lother, and were accompanied by elaborate music. The "latch key" was presented by Rumph Monahan and J. H. A. Locker, Mayor Fleming delivered the address of welcome.

Waterfront and Superior were this morning striving hard to secure the 1916 convention for their respective cities.

Activities this morning were boomed by the presence of a large body of Superior, Wis., Elks, delegates to the Oshkosh convention of that order, who left the festivities there to help their citizens here to secure the convention for Superior.

J. W. Callaway, La Crosse, grand treasurer of the state, and R. H. Worth, La Crosse, a member of the grand executive council of the state, are candidates for re-election.

GERMAN REPLY IS IRRELEVANT TO BE AMERICAN POSITION

prisms when they learned of the American change in policy. Because of this the president and Secretary Bryan have let it be known that the policy in force in Huerta's days—strict accountability—still rules.

Where Americans are called to answer, and when a stable government is established they will be made to pay the penalty.

Intervention Last Resort Regarding intervention, one of the men with whom the president has discussed the situation with perfect frankness, said today:

"Assumptions that the United States army and navy are to be called for action in Mexico are misleading the present plan of approaching the starving Mexicans with food in one hand and a constitutional government in the other will appeal to all of the better class of Mexicans. There are in Mexico today many men capable of sound leadership. It is to them rather than to the exploiters of rapine and murder that the president has appealed. If they get together and organize a provisional government the United States will see that it is financed. While the American Red Cross is feeding the starving until the crops become available, this provisional government will be established firmly in the saddle; will have organized a peace army; will have arms and ammunition to equip it while the bandit leaders are using up their reserve supply, and will be in a position to secure a real election which will give all qualified Mexicans the opportunity to say who will be their leader."

"Only in the event of massacre of foreigners or of gross and improper interference with the relief work will the president call on the army and navy."

There are already enough troops on the border to enforce an embargo on arms when it is decided to put one into effect."

Tagle May be Chosen It is generally expected here that the first man to be considered in establishment of a new government in Mexico will be Vasquez Tagle. Tagle was minister of justice in the murdered President Madero's cabinet, and refused Huerta's demand to resign. He is the logical successor of Madero under the Mexican constitution. It is not expected that he will be retained as president. He will step aside immediately, either for the provisional president to be chosen by the factional leaders or by the non-military Mexicans backed by the United States.

This provisional president can hold office only during this year, for the constitutional term to which Madero was elected, and cannot be a candidate, under the Mexican constitution, to succeed himself. It is expected that because of this fact the real "iron man" of Mexico will have only a subordinate part in the first few months of restoration of order in Mexico, becoming a full candidate for a full term as soon as a constitutional election can be held.

The average man can meet flattery many times without recognizing it, if it happens to be aimed at him.

Owners of unlicensed dogs are about to hear from the police department today. The first person arrested for having dogs in violation of the ordinance was Ed Schwartz, 914 St. James street, who was arraigned in police court this morning and pleaded guilty to having two female dogs on which license was unpaid. He was assessed a fine of $15 and costs by Judge Hunt.

FORTY CENT DROP IN FLOUR PRICES HOUSEWIVES HAPPY

Some relief from the "high cost of living" tension was felt by La Crosse housekeepers and bread makers today when the Listman Mill company announced a forty cent drop in flour prices.

"Patents," the best grade of flour selling yesterday at $8 per barrel, is today being quoted at $7.60, while "Straights," second grade flour selling formerly at $7.90 per barrel, is now selling for $7.50.

Feeds also have dropped in price. Bran and shorts are selling for $2 per ton less today. White middlings and red dog are the same.

The mill management today gave out the information that the three and one-half cent increase in wheat prices would not affect flour prices unless the prices were maintained for a length of time.

BRADLEY'S FIGHT IS AGAIN WAGED ON NORMAL 'GYM'

MADISON, Wis., June 3.—(Special.)—Arguments on the senate side on the Bradley bill repealing an appropriation of $45,000 for a physical education building for the La Crosse normal school were held before the education committee yesterday afternoon, and will be completed next week Thursday, when Regent W. F. Wolfe is able to appear.

For the bill yesterday the author, Assemblyman Bradley of Hudson and Assemblyman F. L. McGowan of Endeavor spoke. Mr. McGowan said he opposed any bill that made the taxpayers of the whole state stand for the expense of benefitting a relatively small number in a limited area of the state far removed from centers of population.

Bradley repeated his former arguments on the bill, when he said that physical culture in his boyhood days was gotten by the use of the sawback and the broom. He said there was need for economy.

President Cotton detailed the congestion in the La Crosse school, now containing 750 students. Five teachers have not enough room to conduct their work, he said, and the proposed building would enable them to give instruction in other subjects than physical education. He was reminded that the building had been unfortunately named in the bill.

The building is to cost $30,000. The sum of $35,000 has been available for a long time, but nothing was done towards starting the building until the will of the present legislature on the $45,000 appropriation was manifested.

ANTIHAZING LAW NOW BEFORE SOLONS

MADISON, Wis., June 3.—(Special.)—For two hours yesterday afternoon the committee on state affairs heard arguments on the "Culerson bill" prohibiting hazing at educational institutions in the state. President Charles R. Van Hise of the University of Wisconsin, O. D. Jones and J. F. Selnes appeared in opposition to the measure.

Representative Selnes said that those who opposed a bill of this character were in favor of lawlessness and he expressed the opinion that the state should withhold appropriations to the university until a bill of this character was upon the statute books. He told of some of the hazing pranks of the boys at Appleton college and declared that many a mother spent weary nights wondering whether her son was being made the victim of these practices.

TENTH OF WEDDINGS ARE FAILURES HERE SAY COUNTY HEADS

One Marriage in Every Ten Results in Divorce According to Figures at Court House

That marriages are made in heaven was the opinion of the English poet, Alfred Tennyson, but the poet did not live in La Crosse county or his views would probably have been different.

More than one marriage in every ten performed in this county in the preceding nineteen months have been failures, according to figures obtained today from clerk of the court and county clerk.

Since the month of October, 1913, approximately 300 marriages have been sanctioned in La Crosse county, according to Bert A. Jolivet, county clerk's records.

The court records of Frank H. Aiken, clerk of the court, show that during that time fifty-six divorces have been granted. These figures show that over eleven per cent of the marriages were failures during that time.

The calendar for the balance of the present term of circuit court contains seven new divorce actions.

NO CANAL TRIP FOR ATLANTIC FLEET

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Queries at the navy department concerning statements that the Atlantic fleet's trip through the Panama canal had been definitely postponed failed to elicit confirmation today.

The fact is, as stated by the United Press some time ago, the voyage to the Pacific has been definitely abandoned. Of this there has been no question since the statement was made unofficially. A formal announcement of it was looked for today very soon—possibly late this afternoon, or Friday.

It was understood the canal officials consider another slide likely in the course of the summer, which might involve the stranding of some of the ships in the big ditch, the cutting of the fleet in two, or leaving all of it on the Pacific side.

Acid Stomachs Are Dangerous

Common Sense Advice by a Distinguished Specialist

"Acid" stomachs are dangerous because acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach, thus hindering and preventing the proper action of the stomach, and leading to probably nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble from which people suffer. Ordinary medicines and medicinal treatments are useless in such cases, for they leave the source of the trouble, the acid in the stomach, as dangerous as ever. The acid must be neutralized, and its formation prevented, and the best thing for this purpose is a teaspoonful of bisulphated magnesia, a simple antacid, taken in a little warm or cold water after eating, which not only neutralizes the acid, but also prevents the fermentation from which acidity is developed. Foods which ordinarily cause distress may be eaten with impunity if the meal is followed with a little bisulphated magnesia, which can be obtained from O. T. Erhart or any druggist, and should always be kept handy.

AMERICAN LINER CHASED BY U-BOAT

NEW YORK, June 3.—The New York Tribune yesterday printed a story from its special correspondent who arrived at Liverpool Sunday aboard the American liner St. Paul, claiming the captain of that vessel admitted being pursued by a German submarine up to the bar of the Mersey.

There seems to be a difference between the lover who loses his heart and the one who simply loses heart.

$5,450 Per Day Spent to Fortify Goodyear Tires

Our experts say: "If Goodyear tires were built like some others, our saving would be $1,635,000 per year—$5,450 per day."

The difference would hardly be visible when the tire is complete. But it would probably cost our users a million dollars monthly.

Better Still

But, instead of skimping Goodyear tires, we are building them better still.

Goodyear Fortified tires, for many years, have embodied five costly features exclusive to these tires. We still employ them all.

We spend on experts $100,000 yearly to find new betterments to add. In the past year alone we have added improvements which cost us exceeding $500,000 per year.

Lower Prices

Yet Goodyear prices are constantly coming down. Our last big reduction—on February 1st—made three in two years, totaling 45%.

In view of those facts, don't you think it worth while to get Goodyears? Most men do. Goodyears have long outlasted any other tire. They are selling now much faster than we can build them. Any dealer will supply you.

"BETTER late than never," may be all right for some things; but men think it a shame to let time slip along without their friends getting the comfort of the Real Tobacco Chew. Every day they are telling friends to get started right.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough—cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

THE REAL TOBACCO CHEW IS NOW CUT TWO WAYS!!
W-B CUT IS LONG SHRED. RIGHT-CUT IS SHORT SHRED.

Take less than one-quarter the old size chew. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just take a nibble of it until you find the strength chew that suits you, then see how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end. The taste of pure, rich tobacco does not need to be covered up. An excess of licorice and sweetening makes you spit too much.

"Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste."

Yesterday's Homers
Ruth, Red Sox, off Warhop.
Yanks.
Miller, Sloufeds, off Prendergast, Whales.

Joe Tinker would like to meet the guy that told him Eddie Plank was through. The veteran allowed only four hits yesterday and won in a walk.

It begins to look as though the Phils were going to save the reputations of a lot of scribes who prophesied June would see them starting on the toboogan.

Due credit must be given to Jack Coombs, too. He held the Quakers to five blows, winning easily.

And while the credit is being passed around don't overlook fire-brand George Stovall. Any bloke that can take a team like his into a tie for first place must be handed quite a gang of the stuff.

The Yanks were licked again by the Red Sox. Larry Gardner fattened his average with four wallops.

Just to be consistent, the Giants lick themselves when the other team can't do it. Larry Doyle pulled a boner yesterday which turned a sure victory into a ten inning tie.

The White Sox are off for the invasion of the east that means a whole lot to them. If they can hold their lead in the sunrise half of the circuit it'll begin to look as though Chicago may see some world's series.

It's a bad season for records. Joe Benz, going after his sixth straight win, fell before the Tigers, or rather Tyrus Cobb. The Georgian gathered two blows, scored two runs, stole two bases and handled three chances in flawless fashion.

Night in Go with Cross

NEW YORK, June 3.—Ad Wolfcast and Leach Cross presented one of the best real old-fashioned fights seen in New York in many moons last night, at their ten round go at St. Nicholas Athletic club.

There was not an idle moment during the night's tistic entertainment and the Michigan fighter gave a game exhibition against a man who was a little more clever than he. At the finish of the ten round honors were so nearly even that fight fans called it a draw.

MANY EXPECTED IN LA CROSSE FRIDAY FOR TRAP TOURNAY

Between Fifty and Sixty Are Expected from Four States for Annual Event

Bright and early tomorrow morning, between fifty and sixty crack shots of the northwest will meet at the range of the La Crosse Gun club at Gillette and Rose streets for the annual registration tournament held under the auspices of the La Crosse Gun club. The meet will open at 9:30 and continue until late in the afternoon.

Three merchandise trophies of twenty-five dollars each will be presented to the three high guns. Besides those prizes, forty money prizes will be given, provided the entry list exceeds fifty.

The tournament will be governed by the rules of the high gun system, which has been used for several years by the club in their annual tournaments.

A large number of the entrants will be from the three clubs of La Crosse and vicinity, the Mormon Coulee club, the Pioneer Gun club and the patron organization.

Entries are expected from the four states of Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois and Minnesota.

Barney Buys a New Car To Win a Few More Track Races

INDIANAPOLIS, June 3.—Barney Oldfield does not intend to lose out on another 500 mile race if he can help it. He announced today that he had bought for $15,000 a brand new Peugeot racer. It won't arrive for some time, for it must be boxed in Paris and shipped via Bordeaux. It will be too late for the Chicago race, but will be ready for the Detroit contest, Barney hopes.

Slugfest Is Won By The Hamilton Boys Over Washburn Team

One more victory in indoor baseball was attained for the Hamilton school yesterday when the third team of the school defeated the Washburn third team 13 to 10. The game was a slugfest, the Hamilton boys having the advantage throughout the game. Samp and Havel composed the winning battery and Stevens, Stein and Fisher worked for the Washburn boys.

WIDOW OF VICTIM ON F-4 GETS JOB

WASHINGTON, June 3.—President Wilson has signed an executive order permitting the Mare Island navy yard to employ without examination, as a seamstress and flag maker, Mrs. F. Pieaud of Saulsillo, whose husband was chief gunner's mate on the F-4. Mrs. Pieaud was left destitute with two children and an invalid sister, whose husband was also an F-4 victim, to care for.

MATCH GOLF PLAY STARTS TODAY IN "MET" TITLE MEET	W.	L.	Pct.
(By a United Press Staff Correspondent.)
RYE, N. Y., June 3.—Match play was started today in the Metropolitan golf championship tournament. The thirty-two who turned in the lowest score in yesterday's medal play were paired off for match play.

Roy Webb's low score of 155 yesterday was not regarded by experts as a good showing for the Englewood star. Jerry Travers, who finished second with 156, was also not regarded as being in his stride. Both of these are expected to turn in better cards in match play. Oswald Kirby, present "Met" champion, was tied for sixth place in the qualifying round with 161.	W.	L.	Pct.

Foreign Markets

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, June 3.—The stock market opened firm with higher prices. Union Pacific and Erie were 3/4 and 1/2 higher, while Steel gained from 1/4 to 3/4. There seemed to be a better sentiment among traders and right after the opening there was a show of activity. The volume of trading increased in the first hour and the market was stronger than in several weeks. American Smelting advanced to 70 1/4, a gain of 2 1/2 points. Copper stocks were also in a strong position. Trading around noon was not as broad as earlier in the day, although prices held firm. Reading sold at 144 1/2, Union Pacific at 126 1/2 and United States Steel at 56 1/2. The stock market closed strong and active.

Chicago Grain Review

CHICAGO, June 3.—Weak cables and scattered selling at today's opening caused a sharp dip in wheat prices. The decline, however, was short lived when it was realized that the market already is in an oversold condition. This factor aided materially in an upward trend later which sufficed to make up in great part for the early recessions. Corn was lower at the start with wheat. The large visible supply of corn, however, kept the market from a complete recovery when wheat regained its strength and went higher. Oats prices were rather nervous. They were affected by the wheat drop early; later advanced with
